

Supporting the effective exchange of skills between students, teachers, parents and community groups

Develop imaginative and sophisticated range of strategies for students and teachers to share and reflect upon their learning

To give opportunities for students to take more responsibility for the content, processes and outcomes of their learning

Developing ways of sharing with, and responding to, all the groups that make up the school learning community.

To build a platform to allow for a greater range of tasks and assessment and reflection activities

Developing Personal Learning and Thinking Skills. Extending students' awareness of the skills they think they have and the skills they think they want and need

Developing strategies for the safe, creative and critical use of Web 2.0 technologies

Working towards integrating new media and I.T. skills with the whole school and out of hours learning