

Self managers

- you enjoy having the chance to be independent and take responsibility for your decisions
- you think carefully about decisions and choices
- you like getting things finished
- you try and produce your best work
- when you are stuck you work hard to find a way round the problem
- you take responsibility for organising yourself
- you plan your time cleverly
- you are good at working with others
- you ask for help and advice when you are looking to improve
- you try and plan ahead

Team workers

- you enjoy working with other people to reach your goals
- you help people reach agreements
- you can lead things, but you don't always have to dominate
- you try to be fair and think about others
- you give good advice to people and try to support people
- you take responsibility for helping things get done

Creative thinkers

- you are good at coming up with ideas
- you are good at asking questions that help your, and other peoples' thinking
- you make good links between what you and other people know
- you try and find a new or another way of doing something
- you are good at solving problems
- you can change and develop ideas

Reflective learners

- you can think about good targets for yourself
- you can listen to criticism and feedback and use it to help you improve
- you can think about what went well and what you could improve
- you can keep track of your work and think about what is left to be finished
- you can think about ways of working that help you learn better
- you can share your learning with other people

Independent enquirers

- good at planning out your work
- good at thinking carefully about what you have been asked to do before you start your work
- you try and think about things from different perspectives
- you try and think about and check things before you include them in your work
- you are good at explaining your ideas and the reasons behind them
- you back up your ideas with good arguments and evidence

Effective participators

- you listen to the difficulties of others and try and help find solutions
- you help make good plans and try and make sure things get done
- when people can't agree you try and help people find a solution
- you like taking part in school and community activities
- you are interested in what happens around you and you have opinions on how things could be improved